How to Make an Herb Wreath

Add a natural touch to your holiday table with these cute little wreaths. Create an easy bow tie and attach it to your herbs with twine. Use a variety of ribbon patterns in the same color or keep it simple with satin ribbon. We used oregano and rosemary, but use whatever you can find!

Step-by-Step Instructions

STEP 1 The wreaths work best with herb sprigs that are at least 12 inches long. If yours are too short, just keep them straight and add a bow tie.

STEP 2 Cut pieces of ribbon to 7 inches long. Add a small amount of glue to one end. Attach it to the other end, overlapping about 1 inch, and press to create a loop.

STEP 3 Cut a 12 inch piece of twine for each bow tie. Pinch the loop together with the overlapping ends in the back. Pinch the middle together and tie with the twine knotted in the back. Wrap the ends of the twine around the middle in opposite directions 2 or 3 times and tie in a knot in the back. Leave the ends long.

STEP 4 To create the wreath, carefully form the herb sprig into a circle. This works best if the herbs are slightly damp. Tie the ends together with a short piece of twine. Knot in the back and cut the ends close to the knot.

STEP 5 Use the twine on the bow tie to tie it to the wreath. Knot in the back and cut off the ends. Shape the bow as desired. Repeat for each place setting.

TIP 1 Make the bow ties ahead of time and add to the wreaths just in time to set the table.

TIP 2 Keep the herbs cool until they go onto the table.
